As the number of business actors grow, the issue of good practice becomes ever more important. Consumers have been wondering about the authenticity of organic claims in the market for some time. How have government and the organic industry responded to the need to assure organic labelling?

The government first introduced organic labelling regulation for plant-based foods in 2011 under the Food Act 1983 which is enforced by the Ministry of Health (MOH). At the time, the Department of Agriculture (DoA) offered an organic certification programme called Skim Organik Malaysia (SOM). However, SOM only covered farm production. There was need to develop certification for the processing and handling of farm produce. OAM then worked with DoA to expand the scope of SOM to cover these areas. I am very pleased to report that OAM's partnership with DoA to provide certification for processing and handling, including verification of imports, is now operational!

The pioneer group of 6 companies (Ace Canning; Alive Organic; Budayatama Corporation; Country Farm; Opika; Yuen Chun Industries), who participated in the initial application, inspection and certification process with OAM to finalise forms and procedures, deserve mention. 5 of these companies received certification in Dec 2014.

In June 2015, the MoH introduced an organic certification scheme called Skim Pensijilan Makanan Organik Malaysia, thinking there was a certification gap for processing and handling of farm produce. There was suddenly two government organic certification programmes. At its 2015 AGM, members urged OAM to seek clarification regarding implementation of the two separate government certifications. A meeting was held in August 2015 between MoH, the Ministry of Agriculture and Agro-Based Industry (MoA) together with DoA, and OAM, to discuss issues to be resolved so that implementation of MoH and MoA/DoA certifications would not be problematic for operators. OAM called for a harmonised national organic certification scheme, which can be implemented by more than one government agency, if necessary. However, operators should only need to apply through one agency. The process should not be too different from other organic certification schemes implemented worldwide, to facilitate recognition. Implementation should offer opportunity for joint certifications for export when required. Issues raised are under consideration.

2015 also saw the revision of the Malaysian organic standard MS1529 to be in line with the recently adopted ASEAN Standard for Organic Agriculture (ASOA) and the rebranding of Skim Organic Malaysia (SOM) as Malaysian Organic Certification or myOrganic. Operators certified by the DoA will be able to use the myOrganic mark on products.

Besides certification, there is also need for enforcement to root out false labelling. If enforcement visits were made today, it is likely that many products would be confiscated and the responsible operator charged for non-compliance. OAM believes that a step-by-step approach is needed where operators are first issued notification and given opportunity to seek certification before enforcement is implemented. OAM is ready to assist companies to obtain the necessary certification and work with MoH and MoA/DoA to ensure integrity in the market place for consumers and a level playing field for organic businesses.

In closing, in the previous issue, OAM announced its bid to host the 19th Organic World Congress in Malaysia, in 2018. After much research and planning, OAM withdrew its bid as sponsorships were uncertain and the hosting cost was high in comparison with development opportunities the event may offer to the organic sector in the country at this time. This is a disappointment, yet on hindsight, it was a smart decision. The drop in currency value would have meant greater liabilities, if we had won the bid.

DoA message: DoA certification fully operational and rebranded from Skim Organik Malaysia (SOM) to Malaysian Organic Certification (myOrganic)

The Department of Agriculture (DoA) appreciates Organic Alliance Malaysia's continuous efforts to publicise organic agriculture in Malaysia and we congratulate OAM on the launch of the 2016 issue of the Organic Malaysia directory.

DoA is pleased that the smart partnership between OAM and DoA is now operational. We congratulate the first group of companies (Ace Canning Sdn Bhd; Alive Organic Sdn Bhd; Country Farm Sdn Bhd; Opika Sdn Bhd; Yuen Chun Industries Sdn Bhd) who participated and received certification for processing and handling of organic products, including verification of imports.

Thanks to the collaboration with OAM, our organic certification programme now covers the full product chain from production to processing and handling, including verification of imports. It is now possible for processors and distributors, who label their products as organic for sale in the country, to comply with regulation 18 (7) of the Food Regulation 1985 under the Food Act 1983, which states:

No labeling of food products can use the terms, "organic", "biological", "ecological", "biodynamic", or any other words which have the same meaning unless the food products comply to the Malaysia Standard MS 1529: The Producing, Processing, Labeling and Marketing of plant-based organically produced foods.

We are also happy to announce that Skim Organik Malaysia (SOM) is now rebranded as Malaysian Organic Certification or myOrganic in short. This is in line with the rebranding of Skim Amalan Ladang Baik Malaysia (SALM), which is now known as Malaysian Good Agriculture Practice certification or myGAP.

For some time now, consumers have been wondering about the authenticity of organic claims of products on the market. The DoA is aware that many producers, processors and distributors who produce, process or import and distribute products claiming to be organic in the country are not in compliance with the above regulation. Previously, there was no certification available for processors and distributors. Now with the cooperation of OAM there is such certification in the country. Operators certified by the DoA can use the myOrganic mark on products to inform consumers that their organic products are authentic and comply to regulation.

The government has done the necessary and it is now time for organic businesses to make the commitment to good practice. In order to maintain integrity and market confidence, DoA will be requesting the Ministry of Health (MoH) to embark on enforcement in due time. Please note that producers of food found to have contravened provisions of the the Food Act may be ordered to recall, remove or withdraw them from sale. Furthermore, those who label organic produce in violation of standards, including false labelling or advertisement offences, are liable under the Food Act to conviction which leads to imprisonment for a term not exceeding three years or a fine, or both. Licenses can be cancelled.

We urge all processors and distributors who produce and/or handle products labelled as organic for sale in the country to prepare themselves and apply for myOrganic certification through OAM, as soon as possible. Make the effort and do not be caught unprepared when enforcement is implemented.

Finally, we also wish to inform the organic industry that an ASEAN Standard for Organic Agriculture (ASOA) has been adopted. Besides Malaysia, other ASEAN member states such as Indonesia and Philippines have also implemented organic labelling regulations. Discussion towards a regional mutual recognition arrangement is underway. The DoA will work towards a mutual recognition arrangement that will allow myOrganic certified products to be freely traded within the ASEAN Economic Community.

We are pleased to have OAM as a member of the Malaysian delegation in the ASOA Task Force and look forward to another year of fruitful collaboration.

Organic Assurance for the Malaysian marketplace

Regulation 18 (7) of the Food Regulation 1985 under the Malaysian Food Act 1983, states

No labeling of food products can use the terms, “organic”, “biological”, “ecological”, “biodynamic”, or any other words which have the same meaning unless the food products comply to the Malaysia Standard MS 1529: Plant-based organically produced foods - Requirements for production, processing, handling, labelling and marketing.

Operators can comply through certification by the Department of Agriculture (DoA) or Ministry of Health (MoH)

Note: The Malaysian regulation only applies to Food products of plant origin. It does not cover animal based products (e.g. meats, eggs, honey, milk), body care products (e.g. soaps, shampoo, cosmetics) or fashion wear.

For products produced outside of Malaysia, DoA accepts these certification schemes:

- a. Governmental organic certification schemes that are party to a mutual recognition arrangement, i.e. EU, USA, Canada, Japan and South Korean.

- b. Private organic certification schemes that are IFOAM Accredited. See www.ioas.org

Products certified to the above can be used as ingredient or sold as organic in Malaysia on verification of valid certification status.

Verification of imports for the DoA is done by OAM through desk audits. Verified products are listed on www.organicmalaysia.com.my for easy public reference. On-site inspection is required if processing, re-packing or re-labelling takes place. Verified products can use the MyOrganic and Organic Malaysia marks on product packaging.

Working for a Sustainable Future!

Organic Alliance Malaysia (OAM) is a not for profit membership organisation founded to advance organic production, research, quality assurance and market development.

Also to participate and represent the Malaysian organic sector in policy development affecting the organic sector in the country and internationally.

Membership is open to interested parties in Malaysia who subscribe to the principles of organic agriculture and its development.

OAM Services

Domestic & Export organic certifications

Companies can apply for both domestic and export certifications through OAM. OAM is appointed by the DoA to handle applications and inspections for processing and verification of imports for myOrganic certification.

OAM works with international certification providers within Certification Alliance (CertAll) to facilitate organic certification for export markets such as the EU, USA, Canada, Australia, Japan, S. Korea, China and ASEAN member states.

Organic Malaysia Directory (print & website)

The Print Organic Malaysia Directory lists organic producers processors, wholesalers and retailers throughout the country. Basic listing is free.

The Organic Malaysia website (www.organicmalaysia.com.my) hosts a searchable database for operators and available organic products that meet the Malaysian organic labelling regulation in the country.

Networking & Advocacy

OAM hosts meetings for members to develop their business network and discuss sector development issues.

OAM works with authorities, e.g. Department of Agriculture, Ministry of Agriculture and Ministry of Health to resolve organic sector development issues as well as participate in the Malaysian delegation in ASEAN meetings on organic agriculture.

Contact OAM for more information. We look forward to serve you to serve the organic industry.

HOW CAN I KNOW WHETHER A PRODUCT CLAIMING TO BE ORGANIC IS AUTHENTIC & MEET THE MALAYSIAN LABELLING REGULATION?

Look for the myOrganic or Organic Malaysia mark!

Self-claim or Certified organic claim?

A Self-claim is based solely on the producer's word. It is up to the buyer to believe self-claims.

A Certified claim means production and handling of the product has been audited and certified by an authorised body to one or more standards. Certified claims can be verified from information on product packaging.

A properly labelled certified organic product should include:

- The organic scheme mark which indicates which standard the product is certified against.
- Identity of the certification body. This can be a logo, code or name of the certification body.

Organic Claim: Points to the text 'Organic' and 'Organic Mixgrain Rice' on the label.

Organic Scheme marks: Points to the 'USDA ORGANIC' and 'MY-BIO-144 Non EU Agriculture' logos.

MY-BIO-144 EU code for certification body: Points to the 'MY-BIO-144' code on the label.

Certified operator: Points to the 'ALIVE Organic Sdn Bhd' information on the label.

MS 1529 Compliant statement by DoA or myOrganic mark: Points to the 'MS 1529 Compliant' and 'myOrganic mark' text on the label.

Country of Origin: Italy: Points to the 'Country of Origin: Italy' text on the label.

Unit Weight: 500g: Points to the '500g' weight information on the label.

Nutrition Information: Points to the nutrition facts table on the label.

Ingredients: Points to the list of ingredients on the label.

Directions of Use: Points to the cooking instructions on the label.

How can I confirm certification information on packaging is authentic? Look up www.organicmalaysia.com.my

The organic malaysian website product directory lists all verified products for sale in the country.

For non-listed imported products, first look up the organic scheme website, e.g. USDA NOP, to see whether the certification body is an authorised agent. Then look up website of certification body to see if company and product are listed as certified. You can also write to the certification body for confirmation.

NOTE: Products can be labelled as 'ORGANIC' if a minimum of 95% of ingredients, excluding water and salt, in multi-ingredient products are of organic origin. Allowed non-organic substances shall not be genetically modified, irradiated or treated with non-permitted substances.

Products may be labelled as 'MADE WITH ORGANIC INGREDIENTS' if less than 95% but not less than 70% of ingredients excluding water and salt in multi-ingredient products are of organic origin. Use of an organic scheme mark is not permitted for products under this category.

Not GMO or Pesticide residue free

Use of GMOs and synthetic pesticides are not allowed in organic standards. However, whilst organic certification verifies non-use of prohibited materials, it does not certify that the product is GMO or pesticide residue free.

Mixgrain Rice

Description: It consists of a variety of amino acids, vitamins and minerals which our body needs. It is a good source of soluble and insoluble fibre where insoluble fibre has shown to reduce the risk of heart disease by decreasing cholesterol levels, blood pressure and blood coagulation. Consuming whole grains can help maintain body weight.

Product Usage: 1 cup mix grain rice, add 1½ cup water and soak for 1-2 hours. Boil & cook at low heat. Once the rice is cooked, let it keep warm for 10-15 mins.
